

BESPOKE COURSE

Executive Level Development

Managers and senior executives in the electricity industry.

A bespoke course aimed at developing your executive team's leadership capabilities, providing valuable new insights and perspectives on key industry issues.

Our Executive training deepens participants' understanding of the critical industry issues they need to tackle in their role and the challenges your organisation needs to address as part of the wider and multifaceted energy industry.

Our training not only improves your team's knowledge base and strategic decision making, but also helps build a cohesive and effective leadership team who speak a common industry language and understand the context in which they need to succeed.

For teams who wish to address a specific business issue, this provides the forum to do so, with experienced facilitators who are able to guide and quickly adapt to the group's needs and unique dynamics.

Development outcomes

- ✓ Managers across all functions develop a common industry language and understanding of the fundamental industry dynamics impacting the organisation.
- ✓ Build critical thinking and decision making capabilities of senior managers, better understanding the value and impact that key strategies are likely to generate.
- ✓ A facilitated forum for robust and insightful discussions amongst your decision makers and strategists that promotes trust and openness.
- ✓ Resolution or fundamental progress towards solving a unique business challenge or issue as identified and agreed prior to the session.

When, where and cost BESPOKE COURSE

Given the highly tailored nature of Executive Training, the cost of each course is determined by the preparation and training time involved. Please get in touch to find out more. We look forward to discussing your Executive Training goals.

How it works

Executive sessions are developed according to an organisation's specific needs or challenges. The objectives and expected outcomes are clearly understood and agreed in advance.

- We meet with you in advance of the training to clearly establish your expected outcomes and goals.
- Prior to the sessions, attendees are invited to submit specific questions or areas of concern/interest to be addressed during the training.
- A customized set of online material to review, prior to the training.
- One or more half day sessions (3 – 3.5 hours) with customised content delivered by two highly experienced industry trainers.
- Attendees have ongoing access to a selection of learning nodes from Whiteboard Energy's Online Resource Centre.

Why Whiteboard Energy?

Trainers Steve Batstone, David Reeve and Bruce Mason have worked in senior roles at the heart of this industry for many years and have an exceptional level of knowledge and passion for this industry. They remain involved in the industry keeping up to date with the latest developments including technical and economic aspects. They also have intimate experience of the 'statecraft' that influencers need in order to be effective in the industry and with regulators and politicians.

Our team is passionate about mentoring, developing critical thinking skills and encouraging robust discussions to develop clarity of thought. This, with a network of fellow participants and regular updates, gives you the best perspective in the industry.
